02:34:06 Steve: Hi Steve Here,

02:35:20 Steve: Very dense content which I'll consider and respond later.

02:40:20 Roslyn: Might story maps work as a way to present some of this? There's an example here <https://discovery.dundee.ac.uk/en/publications/growing-up-on-the-streets-a-story-map-by-accras-street-youth>

02:59:24 Linda Brogan: Can we find the name of the maid?

03:01:22 Scott Denham: Thank you all for coming. I'll leave the room open.

03:01:28 Scott Denham: Put your view on gallery.

03:21:26 Scott Denham: Conflating everything. "Hamas" is not the "Palestinians" is not the "Arabs" is not an individual person. Guy's work is to bring people together in conversations. To know each other empathetically.

03:22:28 Scott Denham: Very complex. Very difficult. But we are talking.

03:28:59 Scott Denham: Here is a text I find very helpful in these kinds of conversations. I use this with my students often. Regarding the Pain of Others, by Susan Sontag https://drive.google.com/file/d/14TLUaYC6BafBjfC3\_mUAjSZ3\_FMrCKa4/view?usp=sharing

03:31:26 Scott Denham: First line of the German constitution, written in the shadow of Auschwitz: "Human dignity shall be inviolable. To respect and protect it shall be the duty of all state authority."
—Basic Law of the Federal Republic of Germany, Article 1

03:33:31 Mark Morreau: Thank you everyone! Till next week!!
